

No Precedent in Ontario

No city in Ontario is served by a hospital more than 10 km from its centre. In fact, the average distance is 3.5 km. No city in Ontario requires people to travel around the airport in order to access essential health care services.

There is no precedent for the Windsor Essex plan to move all hospital services to a single site on County Road 42, 13 km from downtown, and up to 18 km from the city's lowest income wards where residents are least likely to own a car.

Under the plan, the acute care hospital will house the only ER, OR, and ambulatory care clinics to serve our population.
